

International Chronobiology Summer School

1-6 August 2016

The Chinese Society for Biological Rhythms (CSBR) and Peking University are hosting an international chronobiology summer school in China.

The school will provide young investigators and graduate students the opportunities to learn the principles, the frontiers and the state of art techniques from the international leading scientists, provide the chances for mutual understanding among the participants, and develop future collaborations.

Important dates

- 15th June 2016: closing date for applications
- 22nd June 2016: decisions announced and online registration opens

Courses & Instructors

<http://www.csbr.org.cn/cbs2016/CSBR-CBS2016-Courses&Instructors.pdf>

Cost

The registration fee is $385 (2500 RMB). This covers lecture materials and socials but does NOT cover accommodation and meals. We will waive the registration fee to substantial number of students. Maximum attendees are 50.

A small number of travel awards ($500) from the registration fee will be available. Please highlight in your application if you would like to be considered for this and your reasons for requesting assistance.

How to Apply

Download and fill out the application, abstract and survey forms and send it with the PI recommendation letter to mcgovern@pku.edu.cn or zhangerquan@nibs.ac.cn.

We will send you the receipt within a few days when we receive your application. After the selection of the applicants, we will notify the result by the 5th of June.

Further information

The draft timetable will be posted online soon. Keep an eye on <http://www.csbr.org.cn> for future updates.

Please direct all enquires to mcgovern@pku.edu.cn or zhangerquan@nibs.ac.cn.